roots.

Four short years-that's all we have here. Our time at Taylor is filled with traditions, friendships, academics, and spiritual growth. It is during this season of our lives that we become rooted in what we believe and who we will become.

Taylor itself is built upon a foundation of roots that lie deep within the rich soil of community. For more than 150 years, students have come together, living and learning within a body of believers.

Our lives are rooted in Christ and our decisions stem from such a firm foundation. But just as important, we are rooted in the traditions from generations that have gone before us. Taylor University cultivates our growth in love for each other and for Jesus Himself.

Live your life here and in the years that will follow knowing where you've come from, as a child of God and as a Taylor Trojan. In the same way, live confidently knowing how you will grow and bear fruit for the kingdom of God.

Four short years—that's all we have here. Plant your roots firm.

-Lauren Arnold, '11

welcome weekend a new year weekend begins

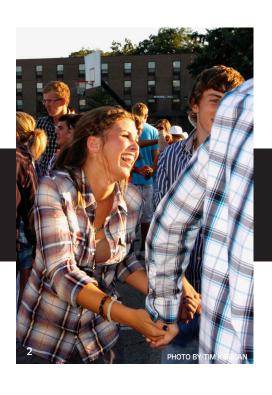

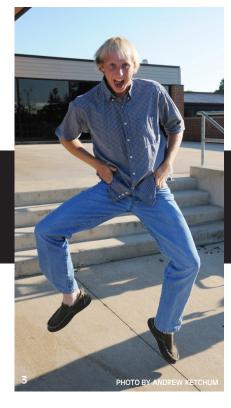

- 1. An O-group concentrates on creating a continuous track for a tennis ball during one of its team-building field games. Freshmen spend Saturday with their O-groups, getting to know each other and completing challenges as a team.
- 2. Freshman Rheaunna McDonald swings over her partner at the low ropes section of the Escape to Reality Challenge Course.
- 3. While her O-group watches in anticipation, freshman Kelsie Morgan-Simmons balances to reach the other end of the beam at the low ropes course.
- 4. Trying to keep one finger on the hula hoop at all times, one O-group works together to lower the hoop to the ground—a task much more difficult than it sounds.
- 5. O-group leader Brandi Wilbanks holds her teammates as they try to take other groups' bandanas while staying connected during field games.
- 6. Freshmen line up as they prepare to play the traditional game of "Giants, Gnomes, Wizards."
- 7. Hearing from their O-group leaders, these freshman take a break from games to get to know each other.

community plunge

- 1. A group of freshman grab hands and circle up during square dancing at the hoe-down. Every year, a blue-grass band leads the dancing with music and instructions.
- 2. Freshman Taylor Potts makes some new friends while square dancing. The hoe-down is a welcome weekend tradition to help the freshmen become aquainted and enjoy some Western festivities.
- 3. Showing off his best dance moves, freshman James Guthrie gets into the country spirit as he heads to the gathering.
- 4. As a part of the annual Community Plunge, senior Nate Wheeler washes windows in the Upland area. Every year, students volunteer to serve the surrounding community in a variety of ways.
- 5. Upperclassmen surround the freshman for prayer during the all-campus communion. This service brings excitement to past friendships and a heartfelt welcome to the freshmen by way of thunderous applause.
- 6. Sophomore Hannah Duncan embraces the theme of the hoe-down with a fun, Western outfit.
- 7. A group of upperclassmen communication students participate as a team in Community Plunge on the streets of Upland.

1. Nick Cartwright represents freedom in the intercultural students' version of "Wavin' Flag." Students from all over campus and the world used flags and drums to highlight unity in an emotional performance that landed them first place.

- 2. & 3. The girls of 1EO shed their masks and dance to their own tune in "Hey Hey."
- 4. Beyonce (Ericka Zeddis) belts it out during 1WO's performance of "Crazy in Love."
- 5. Derek Kinzer provides hip-hop entertainment as Jay-Z raps his part during "Crazy in Love."

6. The guys liven up the office with dancing in the senior's routine. 7. Choreographer Britni Knowles is sick and tired of her phone ringing in "Telephone."

homecoming alumni return for a weekend of reunion

- 1. Jan (Huffman) Glass ('60) greets Taylor alumnus and trustee James Woods ('65).
- 2. Junior Audrey Boyers leads worship during one of Homecoming's many weekend events. Other events included a cardboard boat regatta, 5k race, football game, and class reunions.
- 3. Alumni worship together during Homecoming chapel.
- 4. Three generations of Taylor studnets come together as Kaitlyn Holz, her parents and grandparents enjoy a dinner in the DC.

5. The men of 3rd West Wengatz celebrate as another year of Melon and Gourd comes to an end. They had to think of creative ways to get into chapel without getting tagged by the possessor of the melon or the gourd, such as coming in a hearse, as movie stars with a police escort, or dressed as girls.

- 6. Dan Luy gives a jazzy solo during the Parents Weekend student ensembles concert.
- 7. Pagel Williams leads the Gospel Choir during a worship night.
- 8. Annessa Mosier and her family worship together during chapel.
- $\bf 9.$ Angela Van Gorp gives President Emeritus Jay Kesler a birthday cake celebrating his 75th birthday during Parents Weekend.
- 10. Paul Bauchman introduces his family to President Habecker.
